STRIKERS TAKE COURAGE

The Paperhangers Feel Greater Confidence Than Ever Before.

The joint committee of Paperhangers' Assembly No. 67, K. of L. and the Brotherhood of Paperhangers' and Decorators' Union, in charge of the strike of the local paperhangers, met yesterday at the Labor Bureau, to hear the reports of the differ-ent sub-committees. The reports, it was stated, were very satisfactory, particu-Finance Committee, who reported that more money was contributed by the mem-bers of the organizations who are at work then is required to give ample assistance to these unemployed. It was also stated that the number of unemployed members of the two organizations has decreased regularly every day since the strike was Inaugurated. Even those who secured employment out of the city, it was said, have regularly since they left, paid their ssessment to the strike fund. Less than twenty members of the assembly and the brotherhood union, it these it is confidently expected will be given work during the current week. In fact it was stated that work would have been secured for them already, but for the rauson that most of them are men of family, and do not wish to go out of the city. Under these circumstances it was stated that the members of the paperbangers' organizations express their confidence of winning their fight. J. H. Wells, President of the Knights of Labor Assembly of Paperhangers, stated that he is very much pleased with the spirit the members of both organizations are showmembers of bath organizations are show-ing. So far, on account of the harmony which has existed, he said, it has been unnecessary to ask for assistance from any other branches of organized labor, and he does not believe that such will be necessary.

On the other hand, the members of the Master Paperhangers' Association are just as confident of winning out as are the workmen. They have already received the workmen. They have already received assistance and encouragement from their friends in Philadelphia, it is said, and expect a further increase of their working torces today. There is one thing they are decided upon, and that is, not to give in and they expect to continue the fight for an indefinite period rather than grant the increase of wages asked by the strikers.

A BUSY MURDERER.

He Killed Sixty-six Persons in as Many Ways.

Looking spick and span in new summer clothes, the two stood at the corner of Milwaukee and Wisconsin Streets. They were talking conclentially. At a distance of ten feet, or thereabouts, stood a little crowd which contained a callow youth who was listening. Eavesdropping, in crowd which contained a callow youth who was listening. Eavesdropping, in fact.

"One of the mest effective murders I ever committed," said the dark man with the silver-headed stick, "was done by means of poison spilled apon a bouquet which I presented to my wife. No one ever knew what killed her. And in New Orieans I killed I wo men by poisoning the tips of fencing folls. But for good, noisy jobs, blowing up a lighthouse with dynas made, just to kill the keeper, takes the palm. That was one of the first murders I ever committed," he tinahed, complacently. "I remember, too," went on the dark man, laughing heartly, "that I once kidnapped and killed two children because the mother wouldn't return my affection.

"And then there was the man I threw over the precipice, and the man i tied in front of a cannon and shot to death, and the woman whom I locked in the houre and burned up. I was counting up the other day, and I find that I have shot forty-two men and stabbed twelve, I guess that in the last six years I have been shot at least fifty times, and stabled often enough to be cut into ribbons, I remember that while I was blowing open my father's safe to get money with which to gamble, father came into the room. I tried to shoot him, but the revolver wouldn't explode, and I grabled a paper knife from the table and stabled him. I was wearing evening clothes at the time, and after the killing I wiped the blood from my hands, threw the match into father's face, picked up my kit and waked out. But the only time I was ever called was when I whipped Tom to death in Milwaukes."

The Iwo men walked south in Milwaukes.

The two men walked south in Milwaukes.

to death in Milwaukee."

The claug of a street car drowned the sentence following.

The two men walked south in Milwaukee Street and entered the stage door of the Academy Theatre. The dark man was "Jack" Sainpolis, who plays 'heavies' in the Thanhouser Stock Company, He was reciting to a newspaper man the many ways in which authors dispose of characters in plays in which he hus appeared. On the stage he has murdered sixty six men, women, and children.—Milwaukee Journal.
